Sunday the best chautauqua in the opinion of the majority of people, that was ever held in Rush county, will draw to a close. It was anticipated today that Sunday's crowd would be the largest of the week, not accepted Tuesday, because it has been found to be the rule that there are always lots of people who may not have attended frequently, but who always want to say farewell to the chautauqua.

The Cathedral choir, which arrived today for the rest of the assembly, was expected to be the best musical attraction of the week. The choir is composed of eight persons, four men and four women. The choir will give preludes at all programs, excepting Sunday night, when a full program will be presented.

Dr. Carolyn Geisel gave her last lecture here this afternoon. A large crowd greeted her, showing the popularity she has gained during the week here. Much is expected to the lecture tonight by Louis Williams. Not much stress has been laid on this entertainment and for that reason it was feared it might be underestimated.

The European war will last from two to five years, according to Peter MacQueen, the war correspondent and renowned explorer who spoke at the chautauqua Friday night. Vividness and virility characterized his lecture. It was illustrated by views from the battlefronts of Europe, Dr. MacQueen only recently having returned from visits with the Russian, English and French armies.

Peter MacQueen aroused the large audience to frenzied patriotism on many occasions. He spoke with a vim and enthusiasm that was inspiring and with an emphasis that carried conviction in its tone. His offering was one of the most entertaining as well as most instructive of anything on the program this week.

The lecturer had a timely topic, which helped but he also knew whereof he spoke. He prefaced his remarks by explaining that he had been in every country on the globe except Australia. He confined his lecture exclusively to the war.

"They are using the methods of cave men before the flood and implements of superman," he declared with much heat. "War is as wide as the world and as pitiless as the grave."

Dr. MacQueen aroused prolonged applause when he explained that he was a native of Scotland, but that now he was a true American citizen, without a hyphen.

"That is the way all foreign-born Americans should be now," he continued.

Today Repairing Tower Putting in Concrete Foundation

GONG WILL RING AT STATION

E. L. Kennedy & Son started work this morning repairing the city bell tower. A concrete foundation and floor will be placed in the building and the sides will be covered with metal sheeting. The weights controlling the fire bell were removed and will not be in place until the work is finished. Because of this the fire bell will not ring. This will in no way effect the ringing of the gong at the fire station in case of fire.

It was at first thought that a new bell tower would have to be built, but the committee from the city council, upon investigating, found it could be repaired and put in first class condition much cheaper.

Two 100 Per Cent Babies in Contest

MYRON BARRINGER, 31 MONTHS

Two one hundred per cent babies in one contest are very unusual, but that is exactly what happened in the better babies contest held in connection with the Rush county chautauqua this year.

The names of the prize winners were announced this afternoon at four o'clock from the stage at the Coliseum.

Scott Hosier, Jr., eighteen months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Hosier, of 721 North Morgan street, and Myron Barringer, age thirty-one months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Barringer, of 1032 North Perkins street, each scored perfect.

The highest scoring girl in the contest was Mary Huddleson, age seventeen months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Huddleson, of Mays. Her score was 98½.

The contest was to award prizes only to the highest scoring boy and the highest scoring girl in the contest, but since two boys tied for first honors with a perfect score, the Woman's Home Companion, under whose auspices the contest is conducted, was notified and a third medal was hurried here to be awarded this afternoon.

This caused three medals, all alike to be given away. The medals were engraved with the names of the children and their ages.

The boys outstripped the girls both in numbers and scores. There were fifty-one babies in the contest, thirty of which were boys and twenty-one girls. The general average for the boys was 95 6/10 and the general average for the girls was 94 7/10. The general average for all the contestants was 95 2/10.

Only the scores of those which were above 97½ were read at the chautauqua this afternoon. There were eleven boys and four girls above that mark.

ANOTHER THING TO LAY ON TO WAR

German Supply of Dystuff Cut Off and Color of Paper for Newspapers is Changed.

MAKERS ARE EXPERIMENTING

Many persons have noted the difference in the color of the paper on which the Daily Republican is printed. Doubtless they will be surprised when they learn that it is due to the war. The European conflict cut off the supply of dyestuff, the great bulk of which has been furnished by Germany for years.

The Republican recently put in a car load of paper and began using it Thursday. The difference in the color was immediately noticeable. The paper is not the clear white that it used to be. Inquiry was made at the jobbing house and the explanatory letter of the manufacturer was returned. The manufacturer said that all paper makers were now passing through the experimental stage with dyestuff and that all newspaper publishers would have to be content until the Americans produced a dye which was the equal of that made by the Germans.

WAR HITS

Bloomington, Ind., Aug. 7.—The European war is influencing the cost of higher education. The trustee of Indiana university have granted permission for the university officers to raise the laboratory fee in chemistry and in some of the courses in medicine. England's order in council has stopped the exportation of chemicals from Germany and many of the laboratory necessities have become very expensive.

A marriage license was issued this morning to Clarence McMahon and Mae Jennings.

BELIEVE PEACE LITTLE NEARER

Washington Officials Feel That
Deadlock is at Hand in the European Conflict.

MAY CEASE HOSTILITIES

(By United Press.)
Washington, August 7.—The belief that peace is a little nearer in Europe was expressed in official circles here today.

Those who held this view said a deadlock seemed at hand. If the warring powers decide nothing can be gained by further fighting, it was predicted they would cease hostilities.

The suggestion was made that if the administration is convinced that present conditions in the war zone will not last much longer, it may be influenced in its negotiations with the belligerents.

The German ambassador Bernstorff came forward today with a denial of a story that he had anything to do with promoting Huertista activity of the Mexican border. The state department said it "regards this expression as satisfactory."

CHILDREN'S HOME BURNS

Structure in Indianapolis Condemned as a Fire Trap.

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., August 7.—The children's guardians' home burned to the ground today. It had been declared a fire trap and condemned. Fifty-five children who luckily were playing in the yard had just been ordered to march in when the alarm sounded. The loss was about $25,000. Origin of the fire was not definitely known.

Judge C. A. Douglas, Carranza's Washington lawyer, submitted the offer. Lansing said he did not lay it before the conference of Latin-American diplomats Friday but it was deemed significant that General Scott was ordered to the border immediately after the proposition was received.

Warsaw, However, is in Full
Retreat, Berlin Says.

GOVERNMENT TO BE SET UP

(By United Press.)
Berlin, August 7.—From the east bank of the Vistula the Russians are bombarding Warsaw. This afternoon's dispatches to the war office said the bombardment continued throughout yesterday.

The Russian line reaching north from Warsaw is in full retreat. An official statement from the war office this afternoon that General Von Scholz and General Von Gallwitz had broken the Russian resistance near Lonsa at the mouth of the river Bug and are throwing the Slavs back in confusion.

The fortress of Dondoe has been occupied by German troops.

Arrangements for the setting up of a German civil administration for Warsaw were being perfected today. Prince Leopold of Bavaria, who probably will be named military governor of the Warsaw district, will suggest the name of a Pole to head the civil administration.

CLARK ASSAILS THE MUCKRAKER

Speaker of National House of Representatives Holds up Brilliant
Past of United States

PICTURES BRIGHT FUTURE

He Forecasts What Will be Important Questions in Next Congress—Outlines His Bill

In speaking on the subject, "The United States of America in the Twentieth Century," Champ Clark, speaker of the national house of representatives, at the chautauqua Friday afternoon, held up to an audience that filled the Coliseum a bright and glittering future for this nation and combated what he termed the "rut-making, muckraking" class of citizens who get a hearing before the public because they attack something.

In the course of his comments going about the country warning the people against possible war, he expressed the opinion that if any "country did jump on us, she will soon jump off again."

"I am going to introduce a bill," he said, "when the next Congress opens, to double the number of cadets at West Point and midshipmen at Annapolis because we need more officers in the army and navy. We can use the surplus cadets as commandants for schools which will furnish two hundred students to drill. Even if they never go to war, the drilling will do them good."

"I am going to propose in the bill that we put the surplus midshipmen on the merchant marine which we are going to create. It is a disgrace to the United States that we have no merchant marine. We all remember a few years ago Watson and I and all of us voted to appropriate a million dollars to feed the starving people of India. Much to our amazement and mortification, we found that we had no merchant marine to carry the food to India and we had to hire British ships to do the work. Possibly you people here in the inland do not think we need merchant marine, but we have to pay vast sums of money each year to have our goods hauled across the seas."

James E. Watson, at whose home the speaker was entertained all day Friday, introduced Mr. Clark. He characterized the distinguished visitor as a man of "honesty and courage" and expressed his extreme gratification for the honor of entertaining and introducing him.

Dr. Ellis, the platform manager, explained that there was a popular demand that Mr. Watson introduce the speaker, in as much as both were public men of national reputations

A Race of Athletes

Surely we are becoming an athletic people.

Look at the tennis courts, the golf links, the ball grounds on every side and consider how few there were ten years ago.

It is a healthy sign of the times. It means greater things ahead—with stronger men and women to do the world's work.

These sports have, of course, developed specialized needs in dress and equipment, but they are needs easily supplied.

A glance through the advertising columns of The Daily Republican will nine times out of ten answer the questions of the athletic man or woman.

TELLS HOW TO BEAT DEATH RATE

Speaker at Conference on Race Betterment Says Eugenics is Solution to Problem

GIVES BIG PILE OF DATA

Nature Has Selective Death Rate
And he Asks Why Not a Selective Birth Rate

San Francisco, Aug. 7.—Nature has a selective death-rate, the only way man can beat it is to provide a selective birth-rate. So declared Dr. Paul B. Popemoe, editor of the Journal of Heridity, in an address before the National Conference on Race Betterment. He concluded a long exposition of the theory of a natural selective death-rate as follows:

I should like to discuss more of the striking cases of natural selection on a racial scale in recent years to point out, for instance, how the aborigines of America have fallen victims to the white man's diseases and liquor, against which natural selection had never fortified them; and to explain in some detail the relation between natural selection and alcohol. I have only time to say, on the latter point, that Nature is conducting a gigantic temperance movement on her own lines, which are quite different from those which man himself is advocating. Man proceeds to eliminate drink; Nature proceeds to eliminate the drunkard. Those born with a tendency to alcoholic overindulgence either drink themselves to death, or for various other reasons are likely to leave less posterity than the abstemious; the consequence of this, carried through many generations, is that races gradually undergo an evolution which makes them temperate, while nothing, apparently, can save from approaching extinction some of the races, such as the American Indian, who has not undergone such an evolution, provided they have access to enough whiskey.

It is lack of time alone that prevents me from piling up more data to illustrate to you the working of natural selection on the human species at the present day. I hope that what I have said has at least given you a suspicion that Nature's ancient method of race betterment is still in action, and is acting along some lines with the vigor and ruthlessness that have always characterized it.

If this suspicion is well founded, what moral can we draw for our own scheme of race betterment?

It would be possible, of course, to stand back and let Nature go ahead. But I hope that no civilized man would advocate such a course. We have long been hindering the operation of natural selection by making all sorts of changes in the environment, which have permitted those to live who otherwise would have died. Almost every step that civilization advances nowadays, carries it farther away from the reach of natural selection. It is very certain that we shall continue, more and more, thus to set aside the force which has brought man to his present position.

What then? Are we going to suspend it altogether and let the race run along under its accumulated momentum? I answer: it has so much momentum. If the impetus is withdrawn, it will begin to slide backward. We will reach a point which some of us can already see, where the relations of heredity and environment are so changed that many of those born and helped to survive will be a burden to the race. Their descendants, in turn, will be still more of a burden to the race, not only economically and socially but biologically.

Can we not substitute our most enlightened social measures, our thorough sanitation and hygiene, the skill of our physicians and surgeons the activities of our philanthropies and charities, as a stimulus to keep the race ever moving upward?

They are powerless to push it a single inch. Valuable, indispensable as they are in their own way, they can have no effect, except an indirect one, on the improvement of the race. That demands more fundamental action. We can never make a sound structure of defective timbers, by veneering and pointing, putting up the holes, nailing together the cracks. Science knows no way to make good breeding stock out of bad, and the future of the race is determined by the kind of children which are born and survive to become parents in each generation.

There are only two ways to improve the germinal character of the race, to better it in a fundamental and enduring manner.

One is to kill off the weaklings in each generation. That is Nature's way, the old method of natural selection which we are all agreed must be supplemented. When we abandon that, we have but one conceivable alternation, and that is to adopt some means by which fewer weaklings will be born in each generation.

The only hope for permanent race betterment under social control is to substitute a selective birth-rate for Nature's selective death-rate. That means—eugenics.

LORD CRAWFORD NOW A PRIVATE

England Shocked Because Most Titled Soldier is Shoved
Down in The Ranks

GAVE UP HIS CAPTAINCY

(By United Press.)

London, July 20: (By Mail).—"Private, Lord Crawford, R. A. M. C."

England is shocked. For the most titled soldier in the entire British army is a common private.

He is Lord Crawford, Premier Earl of Scotland and head of the famous House of Lindsay. He is now with the Royal Army Medical Corps with other Tommies at the front.

Lord Crawford comes from a famous line of Scottish warriors. He was prominent in British politics as "whip" of the conservatives in parliament from 1895 to 1913. He is an expert on Italian art and is chairman of the National Art Collection Fund, as well as a trustee of the National Portrait gallery and honorable secretary of the Society for the Preservation of Ancient Monuments.

Distinguished feats at arms in the family of Lord Lindsay date from 1390 when Sir David, thirteenth Lord of Lindsay, vanquished Lord Welles on London bridge in the presence of Richard 2. Eight years later Sir David became Earl of Crawford.

The present Earl relinquished a captaincy in the First Volunteer Battalion of the Manchester Regiment to join the medical corps. As a private he will receive twenty-four cents a day from the government.

The old foundry was formerly located on the lot and since its removal it has been vacant. The lot may be divided into smaller lots and sold by Mr. Tompkins.

CENSORSHIP IN ITALY IS STRICT

Goes Other Countries Even One Better in Keeping News From Public by This Means

NOT WELCOME AT THE FRONT

Shepherd Gets There But Didn't
Find Out Much as They Sent Him Right Back to Rome

BY WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD

(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

Udine, July 3: (By Mail).—Udine is the Italian front. That is, it is as near the Italian front as you can get. And you're not supposed to be here.

You've journeyed from Paris to Rome, then from Rome to Venice and from Venice to this little Italian town and, when you get here you find you're not welcomed.

Other nations got excited when their part of the great war started but Italy's frenzy outdid them all. The censorship in Italy was the strictest; the tie up of the railroads the complete; the silence of the telegraph and telephone the deepest; the secrecy the greatest and the abhorrence of correspondents the most thorough.

It's for this latter reason that a soldier meets you at the train. In some way he has heard that you were coming. Little does it matter to him that you have traveled thousands of miles, that you have spent hundreds of dollars and scores of hot dusty hours to get to this place. His duty is to take you to a certain hotel where unwelcome persons can be visited by the military police and probed.

When you get to the hotel you take the room the hotel man gives you. In a way, you're a guest; in another way you're a prisoner. Little difference does it make that you're an American and that the hotel man's brother is a barber in San Francisco and that he's doing well there. The hotel man is under military rule, too; he must give you one of the rooms that have been set off by the military authorities for undesirables.

After you get your baggage into your room you decide to go out and face the music with the police; it's better to go to them than to have them come to you. So, in a rattly cab, you start off to the police station. It is Sunday evening, at seven; the streets are filled with soldiers—hundreds and thousands of them. They go about in groups; they laugh, but, mostly, they sing. You hear snatches from all operas.

Everybody sings tenor; there are scores of Carusos about. The soldiers walk through the streets with their arms about each other; Italian men are great for arm holding and hugging.

The soldiers are huge; it is a picked regiment; six footers are only average. Of all the gatherings I have seen on both sides in the great war this gathering at Udine was made up of the biggest men I have seen in one big group. Among these soldiers you are in a boydom. Your carriage, going through a narrow street, passes a moving picture theatre which is just emptying itself of soldiers; they're shouting and laughing and gesticulating; you can see hundreds of pairs of hands waving.

Your carriage comes to a halt; the horse is pulling in vain; twenty soldiers have caught the spokes of the hind wheels; the rear end of the cab kicks up; the soldiers have lifted it into the air; the horse and the cab and you suddenly shoot forward; thirty giant Italian soldiers are pushing the rig from behind like a wheel barrow. Then someone yells; "Oh, you American!"

"American! American! American!" runs through the crowd. Then someone yells, "Long live the Americans." In a moment everybody yells it. "Three cheers for New York," yells another, in good New York English. "Long live New York," yells the army.

The rear wheels of your carriage come down with a thud. As you drive away you stand up and bow and everybody cheers again for America.

You find the police station closed for the night!

You've come all this way to Udine with the curtains of your train closed tight; when you go to the hotel you find the wooden shutters closed. You cannot open them; it's against the military rule. You can't open them, even after you've put your candle out at night. The hotel keeper doesn't know why; you don't know why; the only thing is that you can't.

In the morning while you're eating breakfast, with a headache that comes from sleeping in a closed room on a hot summer night, a huge man steps up to your table, hat in hand.

He's a detective. Very like a New York detective.

"I'm very sorry to disturb your breakfast and I've given you a chance to finish it. But now you must come to the police station."

You go. The chief of detective meets you at the door.

"Correspondent?" he says. "You can't stay here. You've got to go back to Rome right away."

"But give me a chance to go and see the general," you plead.

"Fifteen minutes," he says, "But I know he'll tell you to go, too."

Off to the general's headquarters you go. You send in your card. Out comes an officer the secretary of the great Italian leader, Cadorna. He listens very politely to your plea.

All you want him to do is to give you an automobile and let you ride fifteen miles over toward the mountains where the Italian artillery is booming.

He listens politely. Then he says, "My dear young man. It is impossible. Italy doesn't want any correspondents."

"But the English and the French have them," you say.

"This is Italy," he says. Then he continues, "I must ask you to leave on the first train. It goes at 11:25 and it is now 11. You have very little time."

"But isn't there a later train?"

"There is, but if you remain in town until it goes, you will surely be arrested and there is a chance that you may be shot."

It's an Italian joke. There are a hundred American and English war reporters over here who have seen a hundred times as much war as most of the officers in the Italian army and, if the young officers' suggestion that you "may be shot" is intended to give you a thrill of fear, it doesn't succeed. Armies and military men, after you know them, are not half as terrible as a new young officer, in his first war might be inclined to believe.

But the fact remains that you hurry to your hotel, pack your grip, and dash to the train. At 11:24 you're off for Rome, again, with the curtains all pulled down and with the air stifling and filthy. You've been to the Italian front.

What Our Neighbors
Are Talking About

Hays in Colorado.

(Denver Rocky Mountain News.)

A united and militant Republican party with victory at the polls in 1916, is the prediction of Will H. Hays, chairman of the Indiana Republican state central committee, who passed through Denver yesterday on his way home after a vacation spent at Estes park.

Mr. Hays is most optimistic regarding the welding of the factions in his party. He declares there is a universal and sweeping demand, not only in Indiana, but over the whole nation Republican rule and prosperity.

"There will be four issues in Indiana next year," said Mr. Hays. "These will be protection and prosperity, prosperity and protection.

"The unification of the party," said the state chairman, "is a matter of patriotism. The nation has tried and tested the Democratic party and its policies. Democratic tariff attitude and action brings a cry for a return to the schedule of the Republicans and protection for the industries of the country. Everywhere is this feeling rampant. Had it not been for the war in Europe, it is the opinion of many, Democrats and Republicans alike, that the Democratic tariff would have brought one of the worst financial panics ever experienced in the United States.

For President Wilson, Mr. Hays has much respect. "He is more popular than his party," says the Indiana man, "and has done wonderful work through the great crisis he has been brought to face. But no man's personal popularity could prevent a return to Republican administration of this country's affairs. The people had been called upon to see what Democratic tariff will do and they have had ample illustration.

"It is bad that the president of the United States and his secretary of state could not agree in the moment of great stress. While in my trip over the country, I find many who sharply criticize Mr. Bryan, I find on the other hand he has many warm admirers and especially among Indiana Democrats, who have long had the image of the Nebraskan enshrined at their hearthstones."

Regarding favorite sons, Mr. Hays said party leaders in Indiana looked upon Charles W. Fairbanks, former vice president as the logical standard bearer of the Republican hosts."

"Mr. Fairbanks is not in any sense a candidate," said Mr. Hays. "But the leaders and the rank and file of the party in my state are in accord in demanding that the former vice president make the race. His popularity has grown, they say, and his character and public acts are without a blemish in the light of political developments since he left office and all are passing the Indianapolis man to make the race."

The Indiana man says President Wilson's Mexican policy is not popular in his state because of the fact that Henry Lane Wilson, former ambassador to Mexico City resides there.

"There are thousands who think Mr. Wilson was right and the president wrong in his attitude," explains the state chairman.

"Indiana is tired of Democratic rule. The tariff is obnoxious to the great industries. In Colorado I find much opposition to the Democratic schedule. I asked a boy on the street in a beet factory town what was the matter with the industry and he replied without hesitation: 'The tariff.' You may go into any state or any city and ask any man what's the matter and nine times out of ten his reply will be: 'The tariff.'

"I know Indiana will go down the line for the Republican candidate in 1916 and I am sure enough of her sister states will do the same so that a Republican, a man who represents all in the party, will sit in the White House after President Wilson's term expires. The party hears the call of patriotism and I like true sons of America all Republicans are ready for a united struggle for victory."

BEST ASSEMBLY
CLOSES SUNDAY

mented. "They should swear allegiance to the country of their adoption. I am ready to fight at my country's call and I shall fight with all the intensity of my nature.

"And don't you ever think that we are so far from being involved in the war, I saw a German officer with the map of New York in his pocket showing placements for guns to destroy the Woolworth building and the Brooklyn bridge. No country is immune from war. England is going to get a fleet of twenty-five thousand airships. We are only a few hours from the capitals of Europe by airships. It will not be many years until airships will carry an invading army of a million men."

Peter MacQueen took the audience for a trip through the nations at war. He pointed out characteristics of the people and of the various armies. He delved into history to show how the alliances of the European nations might have been different and prevented the war.

The lecturer had some excellent views of Warsaw and the eastern battle front where the titanic struggle which resulted in the fall of Warsaw this week has been carried on for months.

The lecturer said he hated the military system of Germany, but it must be conceded that they were the most thorough people in the world. He declared that Americans had the wrong impression of the French. He had high praise for their courage and bravery and said the Frenchmen had made many a gallant stand during the present war. He showed pictures of the French soldiers to show what robust men they are.

Mr. MacQueen showed pictures of the Lusitania and dwelt briefly on the singing of the great passenger liner by a German submarine.

"I agree in a measure with Bryan that Americans should not travel on belligerent vessels," he said, "and involve our country in war, but at the same time there is a Prussian-American treaty which guarantees for the American people free travel part of the world.

"Of course, I am neutral. But who can be neutral when twelve hundred lives are deliberately snuffed out by a German torpedo and when fifty babies slide off the deck to a watery grave? Who can be neutral when England tries to starve the women and children of Germany? But I am neutral.

"I agree with President Wilson in his note to the German people. He was strict and firm. He did not pass an ultimatum. He simply laid down the facts in the case. He presented the law."

Mr. MacQueen advised more preparation, not for war but against war and was applauded. He said he had no desire for war, but that we should be ready for any emergency. He recalled that Japan swallowed China because the latter was too honorable to fight.

Chautauqua Notes

Secretary Rush Budd has had his "traffic squad" in a good running order this week. Many persons have commented on the fact that he has handled the crowds so that there has not been an accident of any sort. There are plenty of extra police stationed at the intersection of Jackson and Ninth streets to keep people coming from grounds from being run over by machines. There are about twice as many automobiles, on the average, at the chautauqua this year, which makes traffic conditions more difficult.

The crowd Friday afternoon for Champ Clark's lecture was not as large as that to hear Helen Keller, but at the same time it should be taken into consideration that farmers got a chance to thresh wheat Friday afternoon for the first time in two weeks and they would not allow anything to stop them from that.

The Grace Hall-Riheldaffer company was one that improved on acquaintance Friday night the company was a most cordial greeting and each number was repeatedly applauded. The Russian violinist had to respond to two encores and then the audience did not have enough, apparently. Grace Hall-Riheldaffer, the soprano, sang an aria from a grand opera, and in response to the audience's insistent demands, said that though the people liked grand opera, she believed that deep down in their souls they were fond of old-time melodies. She then sang "The Last Rose of Summer," which found a ready response from the audience. -SaaaaaadsFudhB wn

The talent committee of the chautauqua believes that Louis Williams the electrical expert, who shows the many applications of electricity, should be heard by a large crowd tonight.

Many persons, both men and women, were loathe to see Dr. Carolyn Geisel leave and many were out this afternoon to hear her closing lecture. Dr. Geisel was highly praised and much was expected of her, but there are none who will not say she did not meet their expectations.

The audience Friday night had a most delightful surprise when Grace Hall-Riheldaffer announced that she had spent a most delightful afternoon at the home of distinguished Rushville citizen and hearing him sing and that she had discovered that he had a wide reputation in New York City. She referred to B. F. Miller and said that after much persuasion, she had gained his consent to sing a duet with her. Mr. Miller was loudly applauded when he appeared, as a token of appreciation for his ability, and the duet from an oratoria was called for many rounds of applause, both the soprano and Mr. Miller sharing the honors.

MURPHY NOT KNOWN
BY TRAFFIC COP

Member of Public Service Commission Was Arrested For Violating Traffic Ordinance

APOLOGY MAY SETTLE CASE

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 7.—Attaches of police court expected before court adjourned today to learn whether Charles J. Murphy, members of the public service commission would apologize to a policeman.

Murphy is charged with violating a traffic ordinance by cutting corners on a busy street. Traffic patrolman Bowen didn't chose to make an exception of Mr. Murphy—maybe he didn't know who Murphy was—so he ordered the commissioner back between the white lines to make the proper turns. The commissioner refused to obey and was arrested. At the time he was hurrying to get Samuel Murdock, the traction magnate and the interruption nettled him.

The case has been continued from time to time, and it was not known whether Mr. Murphy has accepted Judge Deery's suggestion that he apologize to Bowen.

ELKS HIT BALL BUT LOSE GAME

This Didn't Bother Red McKee and he Just Breezed Along to a Two to One Win.

FIRST VICTORY FOR K. OF C'S.

Poor Base Running or Else Fast Fielding Cut Down Many Chances—Took Lead in Second.

The Knights of Columbus slipped one over on the Elks Friday afternoon and although outlit the Irish were not outgamed and won their first game of the Fraternal league season, 2 to 1.

The K. of C. team scored their two runs in the second inning and held the lead throughout to the finish. Peck Orme, pitching for the Elks was very stingy with his hits and the best the K. of C.'s could do was to gather two hits. One of these hits came at an opportune time, however, and drove in one run. The Elks scored their first run in the opening inning and despite the fact that they had men on base almost every inning after these, could not score.

Two two-base hits in a row gave the Elks their one run lead right at the start, but this did not stop the K. of C. team as they came back in the second and took the lead. Three errors and a single by John Hogan Conroy did the business for the K. of C. team. The Elks threw the ball all over the lot in this frame and the Irish just did the natural thing, took advantage of it.

Red McKee pitching for the K. of C. team had all the luck one pitcher would ever want. He was pounded for nine hits, not a sign of a run crossed the plate after the first inning. The hits off McKee were bunched and men were advanced as far as third base but still the runs did not come. The Elks were either tied to the bases or the K. of C.'s were exceptionally fast fielders.

An example of how McKee was hit and still held the Elks runless is shown in the fourth inning. Three singles in a row was the result but there were no runs. Innis led off with a single, but was caught stealing. Green doubled to right field. Denning singled but Green was held on third. Mitchell struck out and Oneal struck out, thus ending the chances.

The Elks tried hard in the final inning to tie it up, but failed. Two singles advanced Orme as far as third base with only one out, but then it was the same old story and he died there. Orme led off with a single and took second when Lawrence singled. Hauk struck out. Osborne forced Lawrence at second. Orme took third. Innis was not there with the blow that would have tied the score and flew to O'Neil, thus ending the game that gave the K. of C. team their first victory.

RUSHERS TACKLE GRAYS TOMORROW

Will Try to Make it Two Out of Three Over Old Rivals, The Connersville Team

SANFORD OPPOSES HEWITT

The Rushers will invade Connersville tomorrow where the third game of the series will be played. Both teams are in shape and a fine article of ball is expected to be displayed. The Rushville team is out to win and with Hewitt in form the team should make things uncomfortable for Connersville.

Both teams will line up the same as in the last meeting. Earl Hewitt will pitch for the locals and will be opposed by Ed Sanford. When these two meet the fans are assured of a pitchers' duel and the breaks generally decide the games. A large number of Rushville fans will make the trip to Connersville for the game. The contest will be started at 2:45 o'clock.

FAST TEAMS IN NORTHERN PART

Indiana Harbor Probably Has Best in That Section of State With Only One Defeat.

PLAN BARNSTORMING TOUR

Several Stars Have Been Developed in This Section—Play Many Chicago Teams.

BY SPIKE PARRY.

(Written for United Press.)

Hammond, Ind., August 7.—While the managers of semipro ball clubs in the Southern and central part of the state are clamoring that their teams head the list in Hoosierdom and while they are figuring up batting, fielding verages, etc., rating their teams upward, it seems that they have overlooked Northern Indiana. Lets turn the spot light on that section and see what they have to offer.

Although the Northern Indiana league dropped into oblivion last year on account of poor patronage and has been thrown into the discard, the eight club of the association reorganized with strong teams this spring and so far nearly all have given a good account of themselves. All are now playing independent ball.

Probably, one of the strongest teams in this section, is Mat Sternberg's club of Indiana Harbor. Out of 14 games played it has only lost one and that defeat is credited to Michigan City. In this game of ten innings the Indiana Harborites lost 5-4. Michigan city learned that Indiana Harbor plugged up with half a dozen college men. The Harbor team lost the game on an error. Indiana Harbor is a member of the Chicago Inter-city semi-pros league and has defeated such teams as the Riverfronts, Logan Squares, Chicago Blades, Moore and Evans and the Realsands. At the close of the season they expect to take a short barnstorming tour of the state if they can arrange games.

This year Hammond has no regular city team, but a six team city league takes its place. Some star players have come into highlight and fans have seen several no hit-no run games. At the close of the season an all star team is to be picked and it will issue a challenge to some of the down state league teams. Gary with its city teams, made up mainly of old college stars also does not want to be overlooked at the final count. Other northern Indiana cities having strong teams are South Bend, Laporte, Elkhart, Whiting and Goshen.

and had been members of congress together.

"For the last ten or fifteen years," said Mr. Clark at the outset of his address, after humorously calling attention to the fact that Former Congressman Watson had said everything he possibly could about him but had omitted the subject of the address, the thing which he had told Mr. Watson to mention, "every muckraker, muckraker and pessimist has got a hearing. They have done a lot of devilment. There is no truth in any of their sayings. I made up my mind that a person who could get a hearing should tell the rising generation the truth about our greatness."

He called attention to the fact that if the population increases in the next 110 years as it has the last 110 years, there will be over four billion people in the United States, more than are now supposed to be on the globe. Furthermore, he said the combined wealth of the United States has been increased 125 fold in the last 110 years.

"Blessed be the man," commented Speaker Clark, "be he Republican or Democrat, who shall establish an abiding peace between capital and labor."

He declared that now the United States is in the front rank of nations and that in another 110 years she will be the first and the rest of the nations will be scrambling among themselves for second position.

"In 1800," he continued, "half the people in this country could neither read nor write. Most of the soldiers of both armies in the civil war signed their names by making a mark. I believe with Henry Ward Beecher, 'We must educate, we must educate, or we must perish.' In 1800 there were only fifty colleges, all of which were about to die with anemia, but now there are over one million boys and girls striving for higher education in over 500 colleges. In 1800 the churches were like the visits of angels, few and far between. Now most persons live within an average of a church and priests and preachers are as thick as Democratic candidates in a Mississippi primary or Republican candidates in a Vermont primary."

"It is a great thing to be an Indian. It is a great thing to be a Missourian. But the greatest thing on earth is to be an American citizen. The greatest things we as a nation have ever done is the influence we have had outside our own country. Switzerland was the only republic when the declaration of independence was signed. Now there are twenty-six."

Speaker Clark referred to the manner in which the United States had preserved peace in the western hemisphere. He mentioned that Roosevelt once said in an article that the Monroe doctrine was a mediocre document.

"I like Roosevelt for two reasons," he continued. "First, because he knows a little about more things than any human living, and secondly, he is a genuine American. But he will never live in history as long as James Monroe, who framed the great Monroe doctrine."

"I like to praise a Republican when I find one who deserves it. I like to think how William H. Seward, secretary of state, told Louis Napoleon to get out of Mexico and stand on the order of his going. No one has ever attempted to violate the Monroe doctrine since."

The speaker praised the inherent ability of Americans to rise in any situation. He declared that if every office-holder in America, from the president on down, should die tonight, new ones would be elected "and this old republic would be running on majestically within three months." He said if all the professional men were done away with and the American people were given a pad and pencil, they could write a constitution that would serve the needs of all time.

"The common criticism of congress is that it talks too much," he added. "Why, bless your soul, don't you know that the dictionary meaning of parliament is an organization to talk. That's the purpose of congress, to discuss government, human rights and all public questions."

In closing, he said that he proposed to marshal the facts just as a lawyer sums up before a jury to show that the nation is better. He spoke of Vice-President Burr killing Alexander Hamilton in a duel and commented on the fact that when congress next convened, there was no comment on the fact that Burr was allowed to continue as presiding officer of the senate.

"If Vice-President Marshall should kill a man," he questioned, "do you suppose the senate would allow him to continue as its presiding officer?"

He called attention to the fact that there had been an aroused public sentiment against prize fighting, gambling and war and then put the question: "Is the United States going to the dogs?"

"There has been much loose talk about this war business," Speaker Clark continued. "We are called the most peaceful nation in the world and we are, but at the same time we are most martial nation in the world. If President Wilson should send me word tonight that all the rest of the world had declared war on us, I could marshal a brigade in this county by tomorrow night. But if any country jumps on us, she will soon jump off."

It was in this connection that the speaker set forth what he expected to be the important questions before the next congress and explained the bill he expected to introduce at the opening of congress.

Toward the end of his address, Speaker Clark, marshalled the facts, as he called it, to prove that this country is "not going to the dogs."

In passing, he forecast what would be four greatest and most potent questions before the next congress as follows:

Restore the merchant marine, pass a rural bank credit bill, the drainage question and the navy and army question.

WHAT HAPPENED TO NEW LAWS?

That is What John A. Lapp, Director of Legislative Bureau, Proposes to Find Out.

COUNTY DAILIES A MEDIUM

One of His Aids Will Read All of Them and Clip all References to Late Statutes.

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 7.—John A. Lapp, director of the Indiana Bureau of legislative information, is going to find out just what has happened to the brand new laws that cut loose from the apron strings of the legislature in January.

To do this he is going to depend on the daily newspapers—the county seat daily. Lapp said today that he was preparing to have one of his aids inspect the Indiana dailies everyday, clipping every item of information that pertains to state laws, old and new.

When the embryo legislature steps into Lapp's office at the opening of the 1917 session and wants to know how the watermelon law or the 9 foot bed sheet law worked in its two year tryout, Lapp will call for a sheaf of clippings from Hoosier dailies and lay before the astonished law maker the opinion of editors, the epics of the reporters and the facts.

If some tired travelling man has been forced to sleep rolled up like a moth ball with an insupportable comfort tickling his chin with microbes and has appealed to the law for a 9 foot bed sheet and damages, Lapp will know it, and will have the original stories of the case at hand.

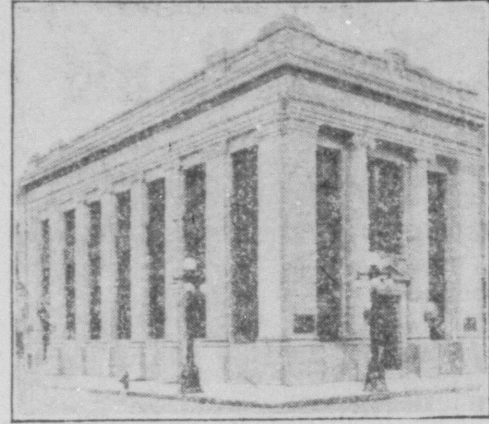

Then the lawmakers will know whether he wants to amend the 9 foot law to make it 10 feet, or whether it is impossible to enforce such a law. He will be able to search out the laws that can't be enforced and ask their appeal.

Lapp told the United Press today that the new source of information on state laws would be open to newspaper men at any time. The first clipping stowed away in the new file was that of a jail sentence handed a Kokomo man under the "lazy husband" act. When the next lazy husband is apprehended, the editor in that city can write Lapp and get the Kokomo dope for a "follow."

WAR CORRESPONDENT SPEAKS

Peter MacQueen Prophecies That European Struggle Will Continue
From Two to Five Years.

Saturday Night.

Sunday, August the Eighth.
2:00 p. m. Prelude—The Cathedral Choir.
2:45 p. m. Lecture—Dr. N. McGee Waters.
7:30 p. m. Concert—The Cathedral Choir.

Sunday the best chautauqua in the opinion of the majority of people, that was ever held in Rush county, will draw to a close. It was anticipated today that Sunday's crowd would be the largest of the week, not accepted Tuesday, because it has been found to be the rule that there are always lots of people who may not have attended frequently, but who always want to say farewell to the chautauqua.

The Cathedral choir, which arrived today for the rest of the assembly, was expected to be the best musical attraction of the week. The choir is composed of eight persons, four men and four women. The choir will give preludes at all programs, excepting Sunday night, when a full program will be presented.

Dr. Carolyn Geisel gave her last lecture here this afternoon. A large crowd greeted her, showing the popularity she has gained during the week here. Much is expected to the lecture tonight by Louis Williams. Not much stress has been laid on this entertainment and for that reason it was feared it might be underestimated.

The European war will last from two to five years, according to Peter MacQueen, the war correspondent and renowned explorer who spoke at the chautauqua Friday night. Vividness and virility characterized his lecture. It was illustrated by views from the battlefronts of Europe, Dr. MacQueen only recently having returned from visits with the Russian, English and French armies.

Peter MacQueen aroused the large audience to frenzied patriotism on many occasions. He spoke with a vim and enthusiasm that was inspiring and with an emphasis that carried conviction in its tone. His offering was one of the most entertaining as well as most instructive of anything on the program this week. The lecturer had a timely topic, which helped but he also knew whereof he spoke. He prefaced his remarks by explaining that he had been in every country on the globe except Australia. He confined his lecture exclusively to the war.

"They are using the methods of cave men before the flood and implements of superman," he declared with much heat. "War is as wide as the world and as pitiless as the grave."

Dr. MacQueen aroused prolonged applause when he explained that he was a native of Scotland, but that now he was a true American citizen, without a hyphen.

"That is the way all foreign-born Americans should be now," he continued.

GONG WILL RING AT STATION

E. L. Kennedy & Son started work this morning repairing the city bell tower. A concrete foundation and floor will be placed in the building and the sides will be covered with metal sheeting. The weights controlling the fire bell were removed and will not be in place until the work is finished. Because of this the fire bell will not ring. This will in no way effect the ringing of the gong at the fire station in case of fire. It was at first thought that a new bell tower would have to be built, but the committee from the city council, upon investigating, found it could be repaired and put in first class condition much cheaper.

GREAT SLAUGHTER PREDICTED

- *****
HOW LONG WILL WAR LAST?

 - * reply Wednesday of famous French general.

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS
(U. P. Staff Correspondent)
With the French army at the front August 6 (By way of Paris, Aug. 7) "If the Germans make good their threats and attempt to smash through the allies lines to the channel or to Paris, after taking Warsaw, the greatest slaughter ever witnessed by man will occur and the Kaiser will meet his Waterloo."

This is the opinion, most emphatically expressed, of every officer from Generals down, with whom I talked on a tour of the battle front on the anniversary of the first week of the war. They declared they only fear the Germans won't try, knowing it would play into the allies hands. For Germany, they say it would be the beginning of the end.

Two 100 Per Cent Babies in Contest

MYRON BARRINGER, 31 MONTHS

Two one hundred per cent babies in one contest are very unusual, but that is exactly what happened in the better babies contest held in connection with the Rush county chautauqua this year.

The names of the prize winners were announced this afternoon at four o'clock from the stage at the Coliseum.

Scott Hosier, Jr., eighteen months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Hosier, of 721 North Morgan street, and Myron Barringer, age thirty-one months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Barringer, of 1032 North Perkins street, each scored perfect.

The highest scoring girl in the contest was Mary Huddleson, age seventeen months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Huddleson, of Mays. Her score was 98 1/2.

The contest was to award prizes only to the highest scoring boy and the highest scoring girl in the contest, but since two boys tied for first honors with a perfect score, the Woman's Home Companion, under whose auspices the contest is conducted, was notified and a third medal was hurried here to be awarded this afternoon.

This caused three medals, all alike, to be given away. The medals were engraved with the names of the children and their ages.

The boys outstripped the girls both in numbers and scores. There were fifty-one babies in the contest, thirty of which were boys and twenty-one girls. The general average for the boys was 95 6/10 and the general average for the girls was 94 7/10. The general average for all the contestants was 95 2/10.

Only the scores of those which were above 97 1/2 were read at the chautauqua this afternoon. There were eleven boys and four girls above that mark.

ANOTHER THING TO LAY ON TO WAR

German Supply of Dystuff-Cut Off
and Color of Paper for Newspapers is Changed.

MAKERS ARE EXPERIMENTING

Many persons have noted the difference in the color of the paper on which the Daily Republican is printed. Doubtless they will be surprised when they learn that it is due to the war. The European conflict cut off the supply of dyestuff, the great bulk of which has been furnished by Germany for years.

The Republican recently put in a car load of paper and began using it Thursday. The difference in the color was immediately noticeable. The paper is not the clear white that it used to be. Inquiry was made at the jobbing house and the explanatory letter of the manufacturer was returned. The manufacturer said that all paper makers were now passing through the experimental stage with dyestuff and that all newspaper publishers would have to be content until the Americans produced a dye which was the equal of that made by the Germans.

WAR HITS

Bloomington, Ind., Aug. 7.—The European war is influencing the cost of higher education. The trustee of Indiana university have granted permission for the university officers to raise the laboratory fee in chemistry and in some of the courses in medicine. England's order in council has stopped the exportation of chemicals from Germany and many of the laboratory necessities have become very expensive.

A marriage license was issued this morning to Clarence McMahon and Mae Jennings.

BELIEVE PEACE LITTLE NEARER

Washington Officials Feel That
Deadlock is at Hand in the European Conflict.

MAY CEASE HOSTILITIES

(By United Press.)
Washington, August 7.—The belief that peace is a little nearer in Europe was expressed in official circles here today.

Those who held this view said a deadlock seemed at hand. If the warring powers decide nothing can be gained by further fighting, it was predicted they would cease hostilities.

The suggestion was made that if the administration is convinced that present conditions in the war zone will not last much longer, it may be influenced in its negotiations with the belligerents.

The German ambassador Bernstorff came forward today with a denial of a story that he had anything to do with promoting Huertista activity of the Mexican border. The state department said it "regards this expression as satisfactory."

CHILDREN'S HOME BURNS

Structure in Indianapolis Condemned as a Fire Trap.

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., August 7.—The children's guardians' home burned to the ground today. It had been declared a fire trap and condemned. Fifty-five children who luckily were playing in the yard had just been ordered to march in when the alarm sounded. The loss was about $25,000. Origin of the fire was not definitely known.

(By United Press.)
Havre, Aug. 7.—Serious mutinies have broken out in the German garrisons at Liege, Ghent and Bruges, according to advices received today. Troops who were ordered to the Yser front refused to march. A number of their ring leaders are reported to have been shot.

CARRANZA READY TO TALK PEACE NOW

Notifies Secretary Lansing That he Will Take up Negotiations With Villa Any Time

GENERAL SCOTT DISPATCHED

(By United Press.)
Washington, Aug. 7.—General Carranza has formally notified Secretary Lansing that he is willing to open peace negotiations with General Villa, it was learned positively today.

Judge C. A. Douglas, Carranza's Washington lawyer, submitted the offer. Lansing said he did not lay it before the conference of Latin-American diplomats Friday but it was deemed significant that General Scott was ordered to the border immediately after the proposition was received.

RUSSIANS NOW BOMBARD WARSAW

Slav Line Reaching North From
Warsaw, However, is in Full
Retreat, Berlin Says.

GOVERNMENT TO BE SET UP

(By United Press.)
Berlin, August 7.—From the east bank of the Vistula the Russians are bombarding Warsaw. This afternoon's dispatches to the war office said the bombardment continued throughout yesterday.

The Russian line reaching north from Warsaw is in full retreat. An official statement from the war office this afternoon that General Von Scholz and General Von Gallwitz had broken the Russian resistance near Louna at the mouth of the river Bug and are throwing the Slavs back in confusion.

The fortress of Dondoe has been occupied by German troops.

Arrangements for the setting up of a German civil administration for Warsaw were being perfected today. Prince Leopold of Bavaria, who probably will be named military governor of the Warsaw district, will suggest the name of a Pole to head the civil administration.

CLARK ASSAILS THE MUCKRAKER

Speaker of National House of Representatives Holds up Brilliant
Past of United States

PICTURES BRIGHT FUTURE

He Forecasts What Will be Important Questions in Next Congress—Outlines His Bill

In speaking on the subject, "The United States of America in the Twentieth Century," Champ Clark, speaker of the national house of representatives, at the chautauqua Friday afternoon, held up to an audience that filled the Coliseum a bright and glittering future for this nation and combated what he termed the "rut-making, muckraking" class of citizens who get a hearing before the public because they attack something.

In the course of his comments going about the country warning the people against possible war, he expressed the opinion that if any "country did jump on us, she will soon jump off again."

"I am going to introduce a bill," he said, "when the next Congress opens, to double the number of cadets at West Point and midshipmen at Annapolis because we need more officers in the army and navy. We can use the surplus cadets as commandants for schools which will furnish two hundred students to drill. Even if they never go to war, the drilling will do them good."

"I am going to propose in the bill that we put the surplus midshipmen on the merchant marine which we are going to create. It is a disgrace to the United States that we have no merchant marine. We all remember a few years ago Watson and I and all of us voted to appropriate a million dollars to feed the starving people of India. Much to our amazement and mortification, we found that we had no merchant marine to carry the food to India and we had to hire British ships to do the work. Possibly you people here in the inland do not think we need merchant marine, but we have to pay vast sums of money each year to have our goods hauled across the seas."

James E. Watson, at whose home the speaker was entertained all day Friday, introduced Mr. Clark. He characterized the distinguished visitor as a man of "honesty and courage" and expressed his extreme gratification for the honor of entertaining and introducing him.

Dr. Ellis, the platform manager, explained that there was a popular demand that Mr. Watson introduce the speaker, in as much as both were public men of national reputations.

A Race of Athletes

Surely we are becoming an athletic people.

Look at the tennis courts, the golf links, the ball grounds on every side and consider how few there were ten years ago.

It is a healthy sign of the times. It means greater things ahead—with stronger men and women to do the world's work.

These sports have, of course, developed specialized needs in dress and equipment, but they are needs easily supplied.

A glance through the advertising columns of The Daily Republican will nine times out of ten answer the questions of the athletic man or woman.

TELLS HOW TO BEAT DEATH RATE

Speaker at Conference on Race Betterment Says Eugenics is Solution to Problem

GIVES BIG PILE OF DATA

Nature Has Selective Death Rate And He Asks Why Not a Selective Birth Rate

San Francisco, Aug. 7.—Nature has a selective death-rate, the only way man can beat it is to provide a selective birth-rate. So declared Dr. Paul B. Popenoe, editor of the Journal of Heredity, in an address before the National Conference on Race Betterment. He concluded a long exposition of the theory of a natural selective death-rate as follows:

I should like to discuss more of the striking cases of natural selection on a racial scale in recent years to point out, for instance, how the aborigines of America have fallen victims to the white man's diseases and liquor, against which natural selection had never fortified them; and to explain in some detail the relation between natural selection and alcohol. I have only time to say, on the latter point, that Nature is conducting a gigantic temperance movement on her own lines, which are quite different from those which man himself is advocating. Man proceeds to eliminate drink; Nature proceeds to eliminate the drunkard. Those born with a tendency to alcoholic overindulgence either drink themselves to death, or for various other reasons are likely to leave less posterity than the abstemious; the consequence of this, carried through many generations, is that races gradually undergo an evolution which makes them temperate, while nothing, apparently, can save from approaching extinction some of the races, such as the American Indian, who has not undergone such an evolution, provided they have access to enough whiskey.

It is lack of time alone that prevents me from piling up more data to illustrate to you the working of natural selection on the human species at the present day. I hope that what I have said has at least given you a suspicion that Nature's ancient method of race betterment is still in action, and is acting along some lines with the vigor and ruthlessness that have always characterized it.

If this suspicion is well founded, what moral can we draw for our own scheme of race betterment?

It would be possible, of course, to stand back and let Nature go ahead. But I hope that no civilized man would advocate such a course. We have long been hindering the operation of natural selection by making all sorts of changes in the environment, which have permitted those to live who otherwise would have died. Almost every step that civilization advances nowadays, carries it farther away from the reach of natural selection. It is very certain that we shall continue, more and more, thus to set aside the force which has brought man to his present position.

What then? Are we going to suspend it altogether and let the race run along under its accumulated momentum? I answer, it has so much momentum. If the impetus is withdrawn, it will begin to slide backward. We will reach a point which some of us can already see, where the relations of heredity and environment are so changed that many of those born and helped to survive will be a burden to the race. Their descendants, in turn, will be still more of a burden to the race, not only economically and socially but biologically.

Can we not substitute our most enlightened social measures, our thorough sanitation and hygiene, the skill of our physicians and surgeons the activities of our philanthropies and charities, as a stimulus to keep the race ever moving upward?

They are powerless to push it a single inch. Valuable, indispensable as they are in their own way, they can have no effect, except an indirect one, on the improvement of the race. That demands more fundamental action. We can never make a sound structure of defective timbers, by veneering and pointing, putting up the poles, nailing together the cracks. Science knows no way to make good breeding stock out of bad, and the future of the race is determined by the kind of children which are born and survive to become parents in each generation.

There are only two ways to improve the germinal character of the race, to better it in a fundamental and enduring manner.

One is to kill off the weaklings in each generation. That is Nature's way, the old method of natural selection which we are all agreed must be supplemented. When we abandon that, we have but one conceivable alternative, and that is to adopt some means by which fewer weaklings will be born in each generation.

The only hope for permanent race betterment under social control is to substitute a selective birth-rate for Nature's selective death-rate. That means—eugenics.

LORD CRAWFORD NOW A PRIVATE

England Shocked Because Most Titled Soldier is Shoved Down in The Ranks

GAVE UP HIS CAPTAINCY

(By United Press.) London, July 20: (By Mail).—"Private, Lord Crawford, R. A. M. C."

England is shocked. For the most titled soldier in the entire British army is a common private.

He is Lord Crawford, Premier Earl of Scotland and head of the famous House of Lindsay. He is now with the Royal Army Medical Corps with other Tommies at the front.

Lord Crawford comes from a famous line of Scottish warriors. He was prominent in British politics as "whip" of the conservatives in parliament from 1895 to 1913. He is an expert on Italian art and is chairman of the National Art Collection Fund, as well as a trustee of the National Portrait gallery and honorable secretary of the Society for the Preservation of Ancient Monuments.

Distinguished feats at arms in the family of Lord Lindsay date from 1390 when Sir David, thirteenth Lord of Lindsay, vanquished Lord Welles on London bridge in the presence of Richard 2. Eight years later Sir David became Earl of Crawford.

The present Earl relinquished a captaincy in the First Volunteer Battalion of the Manchester Regiment to join the medical corps. As a private he will receive twenty-four cents a day from the government.

CENSORSHIP IN ITALY IS STRICT

Goes Other Countries Even One Better in Keeping News From Public by This Means

NOT WELCOME AT THE FRONT

Shepherd Gets There But Didn't Find Out Much as They Sent Him Right Back to Rome

BY WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD (U. P. Staff Correspondent)

Udine, July 3: (By Mail)—Udine is the Italian front. That is, it is as near the Italian front as you can get. And you're not supposed to be here.

You've journeyed from Paris to Rome, then from Rome to Venice and from Venice, to this little Italian town and, when you get here you find you're not welcomed.

Other nations got excited when their part of the great war started but Italy's frenzy outdid them all. The censorship in Italy was the strictest; the tie up of the railroads the complete; the silence of the telegraph and telephone the deepest; the secrecy the greatest and the abhorrence of correspondents the most thorough.

It's for this latter reason that a soldier meets you at the train. In some way he has heard that you were coming. Little does it matter to him that you have traveled thousands of miles, that you have spent hundreds of dollars and scores of hot dusty hours to get to this place. His duty is to take you to a certain hotel where unwelcome persons can be visited by the military police and probed.

When you get to the hotel you take the room the hotel man gives you. In a way, you're a guest; in another way you're a prisoner. Little difference does it make that you're an American and that the hotel man's brother is a barber in San Francisco and that he's doing well there. The hotel man is under military rule, too; he must give you one of the rooms that have been set off by the military authorities for undesirable.

After you get your baggage into your room you decide to go out and face the music with the police; it's better to go to them than to have them come to you. So, in a rattly cab, you start off to the police station. It is Sunday evening, at seven; the streets are filled with soldiers—hundreds and thousands of them. They go about in groups; they laugh, but, mostly, they sing. You hear snatches from all operas.

Everybody sings tenor; there are scores of Carusos about. The soldiers walk through the streets with their arms about each other; Italian men are great for arm holding and hugging.

The soldiers are huge; it is a picked regiment; six footers are only average. Of all the gatherings I have seen on both sides in the great war this gathering at Udine was made up of the biggest men I have seen in one big group. Among these soldiers you are in a boydom. Your carriage, going through a narrow street, passes a moving picture theatre which is just emptying itself of soldiers; they're shouting and laughing and gesticulating; you can see hundreds of pairs of hands waving.

Your carriage comes to a halt; the horse is pulling in vain; twenty soldiers have caught the spokes of the hind wheels; the rear end of the cab kicks up; the soldiers have lifted it into the air; the horse and the cab and you suddenly shoot forward; thirty giant Italian soldiers are pushing the rig from behind like a wheel barrow. Then someone yells; "Oh, you American!"

"American! American! American!" runs through the crowd. Then someone yells, "Long live the Americans." In a moment everybody yells it. "Three cheers for New York," yells another, in good New York English. "Long live New York," yells the army.

The rear wheels of your carriage come down with a thud. As you drive away you stand up and bow and everybody cheers again for America.

You find the police station closed for the night!

You've come all this way to Udine with the curtains of your train closed tight; when you go to the hotel you find the wooden shutters closed. You cannot open them; it's against the military rule. You can't open them, even after you've put your candle out at night. The hotel keeper doesn't know why; you don't know why; the only thing is that you can't.

In the morning while you're eating breakfast, with a headache that comes from sleeping in a closed room on a hot summer night, a huge man steps up to your table, hat in hand.

He's a detective. Very like a New York detective.

"I'm very sorry to disturb your breakfast and I've given you a chance to finish it. But now you must come to the police station.

You go. The chief of detective meets you at the door.

"Correspondent?" he says. "You can't stay here. You've got to go back to Rome right away."

"But give me a chance to go and see the general," you plead.

"Fifteen minutes," he says, "But I know he'll tell you to go, too."

Off to the general's headquarters you go. You send in your card. Out comes an officer the secretary of the great Italian leader, Cadorna. He listens very politely to your plea.

All you want him to do is to give you an automobile and let you ride fifteen miles over toward the mountains where the Italian artillery is booming.

He listens politely. Then he says. "My dear young man. It is impossible. Italy doesn't want any correspondents."

"But the English and the French have them," you say.

"This is Italy," he says. Then he continues. "I must ask you to leave on the first train. It goes at 11:25 and it is now 11. You have very little time."

"But isn't there a later train?"

"There is, but if you remain in town until it goes, you will surely be arrested and there is a chance that you may be shot."

It's an Italian joke. There are a hundred American and English war reporters over here who have seen a hundred times as much war as most of the officers in the Italian army and, if the young officers suggestion that you "may be shot" is intended to give you a thrill of fear, it doesn't succeed. Armies and military men, after you know them, are not half as terrible as a new young officer, in his first war might be inclined to believe.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

Hays in Colorado.

(Denver Rocky Mountain News.)

A united and militant Republican party with victory at the polls in 1916, is the prediction of Will H. Hays, chairman of the Indiana Republican state central committee, who passed through Denver yesterday on his way home after a vacation spent at Estes park.

Mr. Hays is most optimistic regarding the welding of the factions in his party. He declares there is a universal and sweeping demand, not only in Indiana, but over the whole nation Republican rule and prosperity.

"There will be four issues in Indiana next year," said Mr. Hays. "These will be protection and prosperity, prosperity and protection."

"The unification of the party," said the state chairman, "is a matter of patriotism. The nation has tried and tested the Democratic party and its policies. Democratic tariff attitude and action brings a cry for a return to the schedule of the Republicans and protection for the industries of the country. Everywhere is this feeling rampant. Had it not been for the war in Europe, it is the opinion of many Democrats and Republicans alike, that the Democratic tariff would have brought one of the worst financial panics ever experienced in the United States."

For President Wilson, Mr. Hays has much respect. "He is more popular than his party," says the Indiana man, "and has done wonderful work through the great crisis he has been brought to face. But no man's personal popularity could prevent a return to Republican administration of this country's affairs. The people had been called upon to see what Democratic tariff will do and they have had ample illustration."

"It is bad that the president of the United States and his secretary of state could not agree in the moment of great stress. While in my trip over the country, I find many who sharply criticize Mr. Bryan, I find on the other hand he has many warm admirers and especially among Indiana Democrats, who have long had the image of the Nebraska enshrined at their hearthstones."

Regarding favorite sons, Mr. Hays said party leaders in Indiana looked upon Charles W. Fairbanks, former vice president as the logical standard bearer of the Republican hosts."

"Mr. Fairbanks is not in any sense a candidate," said Mr. Hays. "But the leaders and the rank and file of the party in my state are in accord in demanding that the former vice president make the race. His popularity has grown, they say, and his character and public acts are without a blemish in the light of political developments since he left office and all are passing the Indianapolis man to make the race."

The Indiana man says President Wilson's Mexican policy is not popular in his state because of the fact that Henry Lane Wilson, former ambassador to Mexico City resides there.

"There are thousands who think Mr. Wilson was right and the president wrong in his attitude," explains the state chairman.

"Indiana is tired of Democratic rule. The tariff is obnoxious to the great industries. In Colorado I find much opposition to the Democratic schedule. I asked a boy on the street in a beet factory town what was the matter with the industry and he replied without hesitation: 'The tariff.' You may go into any state or any city and ask any man what's the matter and nine times out of ten his reply will be: 'The tariff.'"

"I know Indiana will go down the line for the Republican candidate in mented. "They should swear allegiance to the country of their adoption. I am ready to fight at my country's call and I shall fight with all the intensity of my nature."

"And don't you ever think that we are so far from being involved in the war. I saw a German officer with the map of New York in his pocket showing placements for guns to destroy the Woolworth building and the Brooklyn bridge. No country is immune from war. England is going to get a fleet of twenty-five thousand airships. We are only a few hours from the capitals of Europe by airships. It will not be many years until airships will carry an invading army of a million men."

Peter MacQueen took the audience for a trip through the nations at war. He pointed out characteristics of the people and of the various armies. He delved into history to show how the alliances of the European nations might have been different and prevented the war.

The lecturer had some excellent views of Warsaw and the eastern battle front where the titanic struggle which resulted in the fall of Warsaw this week has been carried on for months.

The lecturer said he hated the military system of Germany, but it must be conceded that they were the most thorough people in the world. He declared that Americans had the wrong impression of the French. He had high praise for their courage and bravery and said the Frenchmen had made many a gallant stand during the present war. He showed pictures of the French soldiers to show what robust men they are.

Mr. MacQueen showed pictures of the Lusitania and dwelt briefly on the singing of the great passenger liner by a German submarine.

"I agree in a measure with Bryan that Americans should not travel on belligerent vessels," he said, "and involve our country in war, but at the same time there is a Prussian-American treaty which guarantees for the American people free travel part of the world."

"Of course, I am neutral. But who can be neutral when twelve hundred lives are deliberately snuffed out by a German torpedo and when fifty babies slide off the deck to a watery grave? Who can be neutral when England tries to starve the women and children of Germany? But I am neutral."

"I agree with President Wilson in his note to the German people. He was strict and firm. He did not pass an ultimatum. He simply laid down the facts in the case. He presented the law."

Mr. MacQueen advised more preparation, not for war but against war and was applauded. He said he had no desire for war, but that we should be ready for any emergency. He recalled that Japan swallowed China because the latter was too honorable to fight.

Chautauqua Notes

Secretary Rush Budd has had his

"traffic squad" in a good running order this week. Many persons have commented on the fact that he has handled the crowds so that there has not been an accident of any sort. There are plenty of extra police stationed at the intersection of Jackson and Ninth streets to keep people coming from grounds from being run over by machines. There are about twice as many automobiles, on the average, at the chautauqua this year, which makes traffic conditions more difficult.

The crowd Friday afternoon for Champ Clark's lecture was not as large as that to hear Helen Keller, but at the same time it should be taken into consideration that farmers got a chance to thresh wheat Friday afternoon for the first time in two weeks and they would not allow anything to stop them from that.

The Grace Hall-Riheldaffer company was one that improved on acquaintance Friday night the company was a most cordial greeting and each number was repeatedly applauded. The Russian violinist had to respond to two encores and then the audience did not have enough, apparently. Grace Hall-Riheldaffer, the soprano, sang an aria from a grand opera, and in response to the audience's insistent demands, said that though the people liked grand opera, she believed that deep down in their souls they were fond of old-time melodies. She then sang "The Last Rose of Summer," which found a ready response from the audience. -SaaaaaadsFudfhB wn

The talent committee of the chautauqua believes that Louis Williams the electrical expert, who shows the many applications of electricity, should be heard by a large crowd tonight.

Many persons, both men and women, were loathe to see Dr. Carolyn Geisel leave and many were out this afternoon to hear her closing lecture. Dr. Geisel was highly praised and much was expected of her, but there are none who will not say she did not meet their expectations.

The audience Friday night had a most delightful surprise when Grace Hall-Riheldaffer announced that she had spent a most delightful afternoon at the home of distinguished Rushville citizen and hearing him sing and that she had discovered that he had a wide reputation in New York City. She referred to B. F. Miller and said that after much persuasion, she had gained his consent to sing a duet with her. Mr. Miller was loudly applauded when he appeared, as a token of appreciation for his ability, and the duet from an oratoria was called for many rounds of applause, both the soprano and Mr. Miller sharing the honors.

MURPHY NOT KNOWN BY TRAFFIC COP

Member of Public Service Commission Was Arrested For Violating Traffic Ordinance

APOLOGY MAY SETTLE CASE

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 7.—Attaches of police court expected before court adjourned today to learn whether Charles J. Murphy, members of the public service commission would apologize to a policeman.

Murphy is charged with violating a traffic ordinance by cutting corners on a busy street. Traffic patrolman Bowen didn't choose to make an exception of Mr. Murphy—maybe he didn't know who Murphy was—so he ordered the commissioner back between the white lines to make the proper turns. The commissioner refused to obey and was arrested. At the time he was hurrying to get Samuel Murdock, the traction magnate and the interruption nettled him.

The case has been continued from time to time, and it was not known whether Mr. Murphy has accepted Judge Deery's suggestion that he apologize to Bowen.

ELKS HIT BALL BUT LOSE GAME

This Didn't Bother Red McKee and he Just Breezed Along to a Two to One Win.

FIRST VICTORY FOR K. OF C'S.

Poor Base Running or Else Fast
Fielding Cut Down Many Chances—Took Lead in Second.

The Knights of Columbus slipped one over on the Elks Friday afternoon and although outthit the Irish were not outgamed and won their first game of the Fraternal league season, 2 to 1.

The K. of C. team scored their two runs in the second inning and held the lead throughout to the finish. Peck Orme, pitching for the Elks was very stingy with his hits and the best the K. of C.'s could do was to gather two hits. One of these hits came at an opportune time, however, and drove in one run. The Elks scored their first run in the opening inning and despite the fact that they had men on base almost every inning after these, could not score.

Two two-base hits in a row gave the Elks their one run lead right at the start, but this did not stop the K. of C. team as they came back in the second and took the lead. Three errors and a single by John Hogan Conroy did the business for the K. of C. team. The Elks threw the ball all over the lot in this frame and the Irish just did the natural thing, took advantage of it.

Red McKee pitching for the K. of C. team had all the luck one pitcher would ever want. He was pounded for nine hits, not a sign of a run crossed the plate after the first inning. The hits off McKee were bunched and men were advanced as far as third base but still the runs didn't come. The Elks were either tied to the bases or the K. of C.'s were exceptionally fast fielders.

An example of how McKee was hit and still held the Elks runless is shown in the fourth inning. Three singles in a row was the result but there were no runs. Innis led off with a single, but was caught stealing. Green doubled to right field. Denning singled but Green was held on third. Mitchell struck out and Oneal struck out, thus ending the chances.

The Elks tried hard in the final inning to tie it up, but failed. Two singles advanced Orme as far as third base with only one out, but then it was the same old story and he died there. Orme led off with a single and took second when Lawrence singled. Hauk struck out. Osborne forced Lawrence at second. Orme took third. Innis was not there with the blow that would have tied the score and flew to O'Neil, thus ending the game that gave the K. of C. team their first victory.

Will Try to Make it Two Out of Three Over Old Rivals, The Connersville Team

SANFORD OPPOSES HEWITT

The Rushers will invade Connersville tomorrow where the third game of the series will be played. Both teams are in shape and a fine article of ball is expected to be displayed. The Rushville team is out to win and with Hewitt in form the team should make things uncomfortable for Connersville.

Both teams will line up the same as in the last meeting. Earl Hewitt will pitch for the locals and will be opposed by Ed Sanford. When these two meet the fans are assured of a pitchers' duel and the breaks generally decide the games. A large number of Rushville fans will make the trip to Connersville for the game. The contest will be started at 2:45 o'clock.

FAST TEAMS IN NORTHERN PART

Indiana Harbor Probably Has Best in That Section of State With Only One Defeat.

PLAN BARNSTORMING TOUR

Several Stars Have Been Developed in This Section—Play Many Chicago Teams.

BY SPIKE PARRY.

(Written for United Press.)

Hammond, Ind., August 7.—While the managers of semipro ball clubs in the Southern and central part of the state are clamoring that their teams head the list in Hoosierdom and while they are figuring up batting, fielding averages, etc., rating their teams upward, it seems that they have overlooked Northern Indiana. Lets turn the spot light on that section and see what they have to offer.

Although the Northern Indiana league dropped into oblivion last year on account of poor patronage and has been thrown into the discard, the eight club of the association reorganized with strong teams this spring and so far nearly all have given a good account of themselves. All are now playing independent ball.

Probably, one of the strongest teams in this section, is Mat Sternberg's club of Indiana Harbor. Out of 14 games played it has only lost one and that defeat is credited to Michigan City. In this game of ten innings the Indiana Harborites lost 6-4. Michigan city learned that Indiana Harbor plugged up with half a dozen college men. The Harbor team lost the game on an error. Indiana Harbor is a member of the Chicago Inter-city semi-pros league and has defeated such teams as the Riverviews, Logan Squares, Chicago Blades, Moore and Evans and the Reulands. At the close of the season they expect to take a short barnstorming tour of the state if they can arrange games.

This year Hammond has no regular city team, but a six team city league takes its place. Some star players have come into light and fans have seen several no hit-no run games. At the close of the season an all star team is to be picked and it will issue a challenge to some of the down state league teams. Gary with its city teams, made up mainly of old college stars also does not want to be overlooked at the final count. Other northern Indiana cities having strong teams are South Bend, Laporte, Elkhart, Whiting and Goshen.

and had been members of congress together.

"For the last ten or fifteen years," said Mr. Clark at the outset of his address, after humorously calling attention to the fact that Former Congressman Watson had said everything he possibly could about him but had omitted the subject of the address, the thing which he had told Mr. Watson to mention, "every muck-maker, muckraker and pessimist has got a hearing. They have done a lot of devilment. There is no truth in any of their sayings. I made up my mind that a person who could get a hearing should tell the rising generation the truth about our greatness."

He called attention to the fact that if the population increases in the next 110 years as it has the last 110 years, there will be over four billion people in the United States, more than are now supposed to be on the globe. Furthermore, he said, the combined wealth of the United States has been increased 125 fold in the last 110 years.

"Blessed be the man," commented Speaker Clark, "he Republican or Democrat, who shall establish an abiding peace between capital and labor."

He declared that now the United States is in the front rank of nations and that in another 110 years she will be the first and the rest of the nations will be scrambling among themselves for second position.

"In 1800," he continued, "half the people in this country could neither read nor write. Most of the soldiers of both armies in the civil war signed their names by making a mark. I believe with Henry Ward Beecher, 'We must educate, we must educate, or we must perish.' In 1800 there were only fifty colleges, all of which were about to die with anemia, but now there are over one million boys and girls striving for higher education in over 500 colleges. In 1800 the churches were like the visits of angels, few and far between. Now most persons live within an average of a church and priests and preachers are as thick as Democratic candidates in a Mississippi primary or Republican candidates in a Vermont primary.

"It is a great thing to be an Indian. It is a great thing to be a Missourian. But the greatest thing on earth is to be an American citizen. The greatest things we as a nation have ever done is the influence we have had outside our own country. Switzerland was the only republic when the declaration of independence was signed. Now there are twenty-six."

Speaker Clark referred to the manner in which the United States had preserved peace in the western hemisphere. He mentioned that Roosevelt once said in an article that the Monroe doctrine was a mediocre document.

"I like Roosevelt for two reasons," he continued. "First, because he knows a little about more things than any human living, and secondly, he is a genuine American. But he will never live in history as long as James Monroe, who framed the great Monroe doctrine."

"I like to praise a Republican when I find one who deserves it. I like to think how William H. Seward, secretary of state, told Louis Napoleon to get out of Mexico and stand on the order of his going. No one has ever attempted to violate the Monroe doctrine since."

The speaker praised the inherent ability of Americans to rise to any situation. He declared that if every office-holder in America, from the president on down, should die tonight, new ones would be elected "and this old republic would be running on majestically within three months." He said if all the professional men were done away with and the American people were given a pad and pencil, they could write a constitution that would serve the needs of all time.

"The common criticism of congress is that it talks too much," he added. "Why, bless your soul, don't you know that the dictionary meaning of parliament is an organization to talk. That's the purpose of congress, to discuss government, human rights and all public questions.

In closing, he said that he proposed to marshal the facts just as a lawyer sums up before a jury to show that the nation is better. He spoke of Vice-President Burr killing Alexander Hamilton in a duel and commented on the fact that when congress next convened, there was no comment on the fact that Burr was allowed to continue as presiding officer of the senate.

"If Vice-President Marshall should kill a man," he questioned, "do you suppose the senate would allow him to continue as its presiding officer?"

He called attention to the fact that there had been an aroused public sentiment against prize fighting, gambling and war and then put the question: "Is the United States going to the dogs?"

"There has been much loose talk about this war business," Speaker Clark continued. "We are called the most peaceful nation in the world and we are, but at the same time we are most martial nation in the world. If President Wilson should send me word tonight that all the rest of the world had declared war on us, I could marshal a brigade in this country by tomorrow night. But if any country jumps on us, she will soon jump off."

It was in this connection that the speaker set forth what he expected to be the important questions before the next congress and explained the bill he expected to introduce at the opening of congress.

Toward the end of his address, Speaker Clark, marshalled the facts, as he called it, to prove that this country is "not going to the dogs."

In passing, he forecast what would be four greatest and most potent questions before the next congress as follows:

Restore the merchant marine, pass a rural bank credit bill, the drainage question and the navy and army question.

WHAT HAPPENED TO NEW LAWS?

That is What John A. Lapp, Director of Legislative Bureau, Proposes to Find Out.

COUNTY DAILIES A MEDIUM

One of His Aids Will Read All of Them and Clip all References to Late Statutes.

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 7.—John A. Lapp, director of the Indiana Bureau of legislative information, is going to find out just what has happened to the brand new laws that cut loose from the apron strings of the legislature in January.

To do this he is going to depend on the daily newspapers—the county sent daily. Lapp said today that he was preparing to have one of his aides inspect the Indiana dailies everyday, clipping every item of information that pertains to state laws, old and new.

When the embryo legislature steps into Lapp's office at the opening of the 1917 session and wants to know how the watermelon law or the 9 foot bed sheet law worked in its two year tryout, Lapp will call for a sheaf of clippings from Hoosier dailies and lay before the astonished law maker the opinion of editors, the epics of the reporters and the facts.

If some tired travelling man has been forced to sleep rolled up like a moth ball with an insanitary comfort tickling his chin with microbes and has appealed to the law for a 9 foot bed sheet and damages, Lapp will know it, and will have the original stories of the case at hand.

Then the lawmakers will know whether he wants to amend the 9 foot law to make it 10 feet, or whether it is impossible to enforce such a law. He will be able to search out the laws that can't be enforced and ask their appeal.

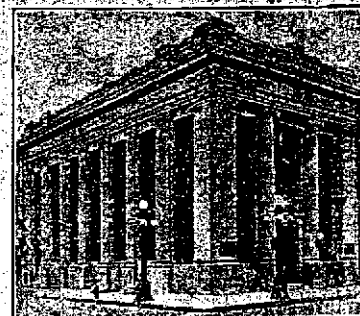

Lapp told the United Press today that the new source of information on state laws would be open to newspaper men at any time. The first clipping stowed away in the new file was that of a jail sentence handed a Kokomo man under the "lazy husband" act. When the next lazy husband is apprehended, the editor in that city can write Lapp and get the Kokomo dope for a "follow."
